

To slow the spread of coronavirus and protect our community members' health, Scappoose Public Library is making thoughtful decisions to close the library beginning Monday, March 16. The Library will continue to accept books and materials returns in the book drop located outside. As a reminder, online services will still be available, such as e-books and e-audio books. In addition, overdue fees will not be charged during this closed period. Staff will be at the library 10-6 Monday through Friday during this period to answer phones. Check our website or Facebook page for updates. We will be closed at least through May 1. We have extended due dates on all materials due to May 11. We have extended recently expired or expiring library cards until June 30 in order to allow access to ebooks, databases, and downloadable audio

In concordance with the Governor's order, we have cancelled all public and private events in our meeting room through May 1. We are able to refund reservation money over the phone if you paid with a credit or debit card. We can issue cash refunds once the library reopens.
